Mr. Editor-In my daily walk and conversation with the people upon the Prohibition Amendment I find, I am sorry to say, members of different churches who are opposed to chang-ing the law, or in other words will not support the amendment. What can think of such, for be it understood this is the Lord's battle, and if His followers will shrink, how is our God-favored country to prosper, and what will become of our offspring? Sad is the subject, and sadder will be the church member when he lays down his implements in this life and appears before his God. Methinks the first question will be. Where were you when the battle was fought? What can he say? With some, and I hope with few, their answer will be, I fought against you. What will be the punishment? He will say, Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity, you have no inheritance here. I think it bad enough for men of the world to vote against it, but to have the opinion of the world of the shirkers will be the
